The background colour is as clear and simple as rice paper, and the light gray texture is like flowing clouds, and it is also like silk, winding from top to bottom, and the lines are flexible but not ostentatious.

The dark and shallow ups and downs of the texture outline the delicate layer.

In the simple display interface, it seems to condense the soft connotation of the fog and rain in the south of the Yangtze River in the stone, which is clear and elegant, with a little indifferent poetry.
